CORPORATE & INSTITUTIONAL PARTNERSHIPS

Every child deserves a story that helps them feel understood.

Steady Sparrow Press develops gentle, age-appropriate social stories that help children make sense of unfamiliar or difficult experiences. Our proposed Book Sponsorship Program allows families, employers, foundations and other organizations to purchase books for distribution through participating child-serving institutions.

Potential recipient settings

Children's hospitals and pediatric care — Books for families navigating health conditions, diagnosis and treatment.

Foster-care and family support — Stories that help children understand transitions, changing homes and trusted adults.

Schools and community programs — Stories for everyday skills, important firsts, and difficult experiences.

Shelters and victim-support organizations — Gentle stories for children dealing with displacement, loss or frightening events.

A considered partnership

Sponsors can request a preferred recipient type and region, a tailored title mix, family or approved corporate bookplates, or verified fulfillment summaries where appropriate. All distributions require recipient acceptance, suitable titles, confirmed production and shipping, and mutually agreed terms.

Steady Sparrow Press is a for-profit publisher. These arrangements are commercial purchases, not charitable donations to the publisher. No tax-deductibility is represented.

How a partnership would work

1. Propose a program. Share a budget, preferred recipients, geography, and any recognition requests.

2. Confirm feasibility. We evaluate title readiness, recipient acceptance, book quantities, print costs and delivery requirements.

3. Agree to terms. Before funds are collected, the written proposal should define pricing, substitutions, shipping, cancellations, refunds and unfulfilled sponsorships.

4. Document fulfillment. After verified completion, sponsors may receive the agreed confirmation and reporting.
